Gastro Intestinal Confluent

The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog.

The Gastro Intestinal Confluent font, which is spooky and tall, was a follow-up to an original Gastro Intestinal font released in December 2000. I didn't like the original because it wasn't "solid" enough – too thin and not very legible. Eventually, after making this version in January 2001, I pulled the original altogether.

According to my early notes on the font, "I got the name from an anatomy poster on my wall, titled 'Motility and the Gastro-Intestinal Tract.' It's kinda gross (the poster.)" Who knew?

This is a DEMO version of the font.

It includes only uppercase and lowercase letters.

You can use the demo version for personal use.

My demo fonts may be distributed through any media, as long as this PDF file is included, you are not selling the fonts, and you don't claim them as your own.

Here's how to get the full version:

The full version of the font, which can be purchased very very cheaply at QuickBrownFoxFonts.com, also contains numbers, most punctuation, most accent characters, and many symbols. You can view the full character map at QuickBrownFoxFonts.com.

Purchase of the full version entitles you to a full license of the font, with which you can use the font commercially in any project.

The full versions of the fonts may not be distributed through any media without permission from me.

Whatever you use the font for, I'd love to see what you come up with! Feel free to contact me through my website and tell me about your project.

Thank you kindly!
